Who are we?

Freetail Hackers is a student organization at The University of Texas at Austin focused on fostering the community of students who like to build, program and experiment with technology. Our mission is to provide students the tools, collaborative environment, and opportunities to create technology. This is made possible by the generosity of partner companies who support us, host workshops and provide mentors for these events.

What do we do?

HackTX 2016

- Our flagship event, a 24-hour hackathon at the Omni Downtown Austin Hotel on October 22-23
- Over 700 students from top programs nationwide attended HackTX 2015
- Hackers at all levels of experience come together to create innovative projects including a web app that predicts rhymes for your freestyle rap using Node.js to an energy gathering robot.

Spring Hackathons

- Smaller, more intimate hackathon in the spring for more impactful interactions
- Our Design Hacks 12-hour hackathon focused on graphic design where winners created 3D renderings, a redesign of a famous Disney movie cover, and an intuitive snack web app
- Future themes for small hackathons include education, philanthropy, and hardware
